FUND DESCRIPTION

The investment objective of the Horizon Active Asset Allocation Fund is capital appreciation.

The Horizon Active Asset Allocation Fund provides investors with global ETF exposure. The fund is managed using a multi-disciplined global asset allocation strategy that primarily uses exchange-traded funds (ETFs) to implement its objectives. By employing an active asset allocation strategy, the fund seeks to navigate volatile market swings, capture upside price moves in rising markets and reduce downside risk when markets decline.

Using a multi-disciplined approach to investment research, idea generation and idea vetting, we believe our management process distinguishes us from our competitors. Our process is organized around and operates through these three critical disciplines of research seeking to drive investment returns and performance: Economic, Quantitative, and Fundamental (EQF) analysis.

ASPECTS OF THIS ACTIVE FUND

Strategy: A single investment in Active Asset Allocation Fund accesses a large universe of global investment opportunities. Horizon considers a broad selection of ETFs in order to access a wide range of market, style, sector, country and currency exposures.

Management: This fund is actively managed, using flexible asset allocation techniques to navigate volatile market swings.

Risk: For Horizon, managing risk is just as important as investment selection. Assembling portfolios of diversified asset classes and having the ability to make timely adjustments in allocation weightings may help mitigate market risk.

Disclosures

Mutual fund investing involves risk. Principal loss is possible. In addition to the costs, fees, and expenses involved in investing in ETFs, ETFs are subject to additional risks including the risks that the market price of the shares may trade at a discount to its net asset value ("NAV"), an active secondary trading market may not develop or be maintained, or trading may be halted by the exchange in which they trade, which may impact a Fund's ability to sell its shares. The Fund may invest in foreign securities which involve greater volatility and political, economic and currency risks and differences in accounting methods. These risks are greater in emerging markets. Investments in debt securities typically decrease in value when interest rates rise. This risk is usually greater for longer-term debt securities. Investment by the Fund in lower-rated and non-rated securities presents a greater risk of loss to principal and interest than higher-rated securities. Small and Medium capitalization companies tend to have limited liquidity and greater price volatility than large capitalization companies. Investments in Real Estate Investment Trusts (REITs) involve additional risks such as declines in the value of real estate and increased susceptibility to adverse economic or regulatory developments. The Fund may also use options, which have the risks of unlimited losses of the underlying holdings due to unanticipated market movements and failure to correctly predict the direction of securities prices, interest rates and currency exchange rates. The investment in options is not suitable for all investors. As a result of its trading strategies, the Allocation Fund may sell portfolio securities without regard to the length of time they have been held and will likely have a higher portfolio turnover rate than other mutual funds.

The fund's investment objective, risks, charges and expenses must be considered carefully before investing.
